A Scottish Lullaby Story

illustrated by JILL CALDER

The cover features a vibrant, dreamlike illustration. At the top, a young girl with purple hair and a boy with curly hair are riding a large, pinkish-brown horse. The girl is wearing a red dress and the boy is in a green shirt. They are surrounded by other magical creatures: a blue unicorn, a red unicorn, and a blue unicorn. The background is a soft, pastel gradient of pink, yellow, and blue, with scattered white and yellow starburst patterns. In the foreground, a woman with voluminous, curly brown hair and a yellow top is smiling and holding a small purple-haired child. Next to her are two small, spiky creatures, one green and one purple. The overall style is soft and illustrative, typical of children's book covers.

When Shona was a wee bit bairn,
Her daddy would sing Coorie Doon
Till she cooried doon and fell asleep
Under the huge eye o' the moon.
